

CHRISTENDOM GRADUATE SCHOOL

GUIDE TO PLANNING YOUR MA PROGRAM

This document is meant to help Christendom graduate students plan their course programs and ensure that they can take the courses they need in a timely manner. It contains information about what courses you need to take, when they are offered, both on campus and online, and the order in which you should take your courses. Once you know your concentration and have decided how many courses you will be able to take each semester, you should work out a plan of when you will take the courses you need, paying special attention to when courses are offered so that you don't get caught short needing a final course that may not be offered for a few semesters.

Courses are divided into four cycles, with two cycles of courses being offered each semester, one on campus and one online. So if you are limited to on-campus OR online courses, please be aware that in general any particular course is offered only about once every fourth semester. However, the courses of the "core," which are required of all MA students regardless of concentration, are offered online more frequently: every year, either in the fall or spring semester. On the other hand, they are offered on campus only in their cycles. So the number one rule of planning your program is to make sure you take your less-frequently-offered requirements when they are offered and not leave them to the end, especially if you plan to graduate within the next two years.

In general, there is no strictly required order for taking the courses in the MA program. However, while you may take courses in any order, the following are some suggestions that will facilitate your learning and help you get more from the program:

- THEO 590 (Introduction to Theology) is a prerequisite course that provides a foundation of the rest of the program and should be taken as close to the beginning of your studies as possible.
- If you take Introduction to Ecclesiastical Latin early in your program, you can then use your Latin proficiency in your other courses!
- Since philosophy is the handmaiden of theology, it is recommended to take PHIL 602, Philosophy of God and Man, earlier rather than later – it introduces terminology and concepts that are used in theology.
- If you are in the moral theology concentration, you should take THEO 604 earlier rather than later, as this fundamental moral theology course introduces many teachings that are expanded in the other moral theology courses.
- It is required to take Old Testament before New Testament, and it is a good idea in general to take your Scripture courses early, since "the study of the sacred page is ... the soul of Theology" (Dei Verbum, 24).
- It is a good idea to take THEO 601 before THEO 602 or THEO 603.

Most MA students need to take two or more electives in addition to the required courses. You may choose for your electives any courses that interest you, either the required courses of the other concentrations or other elective courses that are occasionally offered.

THE CYCLE OF COURSE OFFERINGS

At the Christendom Graduate School the required courses (both core requirements and special requirements for the concentrations) are divided into four cycles, each containing approximately one-fourth of the requirements. Two cycles are offered every semester, one of them on campus and the other in the online format. Every fall semester, either Cycle A or Cycle C is offered on campus (and either Cycle B or D online), and every spring either Cycle B or D is offered on campus and Cycle A or C online. The summer cycle sequence is independent from the fall-spring sequence: either Cycle A or Cycle C is offered at Front Royal (and either Cycle B or D online) in the summers of odd-numbered years, while Cycle B or D is offered on campus (and either Cycle A or C online) in even-numbered years. The schedule of cycles for upcoming years is listed below. Required courses in the core program are offered online more frequently, either every fall or every spring online, not merely in their cycles. Introduction to Ecclesiastical Latin is usually offered on campus in the spring semester and online in the fall, and the prerequisite Introduction to Theology course is offered online every semester. Consecrated life and spirituality courses are offered only in the summer, as part of the Vita Consecrata Institute, at the Front Royal campus.

Full-time students normally attend the Christendom Graduate School for four consecutive semesters in order to take all of the required courses for the master's degree: either four consecutive summers or two academic (fall & spring) years. It is possible to accelerate the program by combining on-campus and online courses, and also by attending year-round.

The courses offered during each of the cycles are listed below. Courses marked with an asterisk are only offered on campus, during the summer program at the Front Royal Campus.
