Graduate School Bulletin

1. Mission

Christendom College is a Catholic coeducational college institutionally committed to the Magisterium of the Roman Catholic Church. The College provides a Catholic liberal arts education, including an integrated core curriculum grounded in natural and revealed truth, the purpose of which at both the undergraduate and graduate levels is to form the whole person for a life spent in the pursuit of truth and wisdom. Intrinsic to such an education is the formation of moral character and the fostering of the spiritual life. This education prepares students for their role as faithful, informed, and articulate members of Christ’s Church and society.

The mission of Christendom College, both at the undergraduate and graduate levels, is “to restore all things in Christ,” by forming men and women to contribute to the Christian renovation of the temporal order. This mission gives Christendom College its name. The Graduate School in particular contributes to the restoration of all things in Christ by working for the renewal of the Catholic mind. The Graduate School exists to form those who seek to respond more fully to their baptismal vocation to understand, relate, explain and defend the Catholic faith, especially those in educational apostolates.
2. The Notre Dame Graduate School

The Notre Dame Graduate School (NDGS) is Christendom College’s Graduate School of Theology. Its masters-level programs offer a comprehensive grasp of the Catholic faith, preparing students for advanced graduate studies and for various ministries in the Catholic Church. Its flexible and accommodating program allows students of all ages and from all over the world to attend either part-time or full-time, year-round, summers-only, or winters-only, and also to study at a distance through our online program.

To teach the Faith involves more than the transmission of information about religion; it also requires a manner of teaching that bears witness to the relationship between faith and life. Along with formal instruction in theology, the Christendom Graduate School offers opportunities for growth in both spiritual and social domains. This comprehensive perspective fosters a genuine family spirit among administration, faculty, staff, and students. First and last, the Christendom Graduate School sees itself as the servant of both the universal and the local Church, avowing its fidelity to that faith “which comes to us from the Apostles.”

The Christendom Graduate School is committed to educating in accord with the Vicar of Christ. As an Apostolic institution, the Notre Dame Institute in 1971 was authorized by the Holy See to grant the Apostolic Catechetical Diploma to those students who qualified for it. This diploma signifies the highest ecclesial competency in catechetics. Christendom College continues to award this diploma in addition to its academic degrees.

2.1. Accreditation and Affiliation

Christendom College is accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges to award the Associate of Arts and Bachelor of Arts degrees and the Master of Arts degree in Theological Studies. Contact the Commission on Colleges at 1866 Southern Lane, Decatur, Georgia 30033-4097 or call 404-679-4500 for questions about the accreditation of Christendom College. We provide this contact information “to enable interested constituents (1) to learn about the accreditation status of the institution, (2) to file a third-party comment at the time of the institution’s decennial review, or (3) to file a complaint against the institution for alleged non-compliance with a standard or requirement.”

Normal inquiries about Christendom College, e.g., about educational programs, admissions policies, financial aid, and the like, should be addressed directly to Christendom College. The Commission is to be contacted only if there is evidence that appears to support an institution’s significant non-compliance with a requirement or standard (The Principles of Accreditation, 2012, 3.14).

Christendom College functions in accordance with the laws of the Commonwealth of Virginia and is licensed by the Virginia State Council on Higher Education to grant the Associate of Arts, Bachelor of Arts, and Master of Arts degrees. Students and prospective students may find the information resources of the State Council of Higher Education for Virginia (SCHEV) of use in planning for college and careers. SCHEV has created an institutional profile for each Virginia public college and university, and for each independent college or university participating in the Virginia Tuition Assistance Grant Program: http://www.schev.edu/.

The College is located within the Diocese of Arlington and is submissive to the authority of the Bishop of Arlington regarding the orthodoxy of Catholic doctrine taught at the College.

2.2. History

In 1969, the Sisters of Notre Dame in Chardon, Ohio, and Msgr. Eugene Kevane, then-Dean of the School of Education at the Catholic University of America, founded the Notre Dame Institute in Middleburg, Virginia. Originally, its purpose was to train religious sisters from various communities to teach Catholic doctrine to other teachers, religious and lay.

In 1971, John Cardinal Wright, Prefect of the Congregation for the Clergy, established the Notre Dame Institute as an official catechetical institute recognized and authorized by the Holy See. This association with the Holy See enables Christendom College to award the Apostolic Catechetical Diploma, the highest ecclesial award for catechetics. That same year, the Notre Dame Institute affiliated with the Pontifical University of St. Thomas Aquinas (Angelicum) in Rome, through which the Master of Arts degree in Religious Education was granted.

In order to expand its mission, the Notre Dame Institute began to accept lay men and women into the program. Additionally, the Bishop of Arlington entrusted the Institute with the theological formation of candidates for the permanent diaconate. In order to have its degrees more accepted in North America, the Notre Dame Institute terminated its relationship with the University of St. Thomas Aquinas in favor of granting its own degrees under the authority of the Commonwealth of Virginia. The Notre Dame Institute then moved from Middleburg to the Northern Virginia (metro Washington, DC) area. In June 1994, the Institute settled in its present location in Alexandria, Virginia, where its campus includes offices, library, classrooms, chapel and study lounges in a beautiful setting next to Queen of Apostles Church and School.

Upon the recommendation of the Boards of both the Notre Dame Institute and Christendom College, the two institutions merged on February 1, 1997. The Notre Dame Institute became the Notre Dame Graduate School (NDGS) of Christendom College and began offering its summer residential program at Christendom’s Front Royal campus. In 2006 the Christendom Graduate School, in conjunction with the Institute on Religious Life, began to offer the Vita Consecrata Institute, an annual summer program of study and renewal for consecrated persons, as part of the Graduate School Summer Program. Christendom is once again providing theological formation to candidates for the permanent diaconate of the Diocese of Arlington. The Christendom Graduate School introduced its certificate programs in 2007, and the online MA program in 2009. The Christendom Graduate School hopes, with the help of God’s grace, to continue to improve its half-century tradition of service to the Church.

2.3. Campus Locations

The Christendom Graduate School is located in the Northern Virginia suburbs of Washington, D.C., in the eastern, “Alexandria” section of Fairfax County. The campus is on Queen of Apostles Parish grounds, in a quiet, residential neighborhood, at 4407 Sano Street, Alexandria, Virginia, 22312, within convenient access to Interstates 66, 395, and 495, and other major roads. The campus facilities include offices, classrooms, a chapel, the St. Paul Library, computers, the student common room, and a beautiful enclosed garden. Classes are held at the Alexandria campus primarily during the fall and spring semesters (with a limited number of summer courses), and most are scheduled during the evenings and on Saturdays. The Alexandria campus does not include residential facilities, but students from out of town are usually able to find affordable housing in the vicinity.

The main campus of Christendom College is at 134 Christendom Drive, Front Royal, Virginia. The Summer Program of the Graduate School is located at this campus, where residence and dining halls make it possible for students from all over the world to attend. The hundred-acre campus is situated in a beautiful pastoral setting on the Shenandoah River near the Blue Ridge Mountains, and includes facilities for a full range of recreational, academic, social, and religious activities. Dulles International Airport serves both campuses, and in addition, Ronald Reagan National Airport is convenient to the Alexandria campus.
3. Master of Arts in Theological Studies Program

The Christendom Graduate School offers the Master of Arts in Theological Studies degree. Students may choose to concentrate their studies in the subdisciplines of systematic theology, moral theology, sacred Scripture, evangelization and catechesis, consecrated life, or spirituality. Special course requirements for each of these concentrations are outlined subsequently. In general, the student successfully completes a minimum of forty-two (42) graduate credits in theology, including core required courses, special required courses for his or her concentration, and elective courses. The student may submit a thesis in lieu of six credits of electives. Courses for the MA program may be taken on campus or online, or by a combination of both formats. The student must maintain a “B” (3.0) average throughout the program. The student is expected to become familiar with the works of the Christendom Graduate School Bibliography, which support the curriculum, provide suggested material for research, and help prepare the student for comprehensive exams. Finally, the student must apply for Candidacy for the Master’s Degree, and then pass a Comprehensive Exam including both written and oral portions.

3.1. Online MA Program

The Christendom Graduate School’s Master of Arts in Theological Studies degree is available online to distance students. The online courses are the same challenging courses that are taught on the Christendom campus, with the same professors; they are available in video format, in which the lectures are recorded during an actual class at Christendom. Many of the courses are delivered in pre-recorded, asynchronous format which allows students to work on their courses whenever they wish. Several courses are also offered in live online format, for which the students log on at a certain time each week and can interact with the professor and with each other. While students in the consecrated life and spirituality concentrations may take their core requirements online, the consecrated life and spirituality courses are only offered on campus during the residential summer program as part of the 4-week Vita Consecrata Institute, detailed below. Therefore, the degree cannot be earned entirely online if either of these two concentrations is pursued.

Students may combine online courses with classroom courses in any combination that works for them. Many students find that attending the six-week residential Summer Program while taking online courses over the winter combines the great experience of the Christendom community with the advantage of finishing the degree in a shorter time. Degree requirements are the same for on-campus students and for distance students. At the end of their course of studies, distance students must travel to Virginia to take the comprehensive exam.

Admissions requirements and procedures are the same for online/distance and on-campus students. Online students have the same easy access to academic advisement, to the graduate school administrative staff, and to the Graduate School professors as on-campus students have, usually via telephone and email. The Christendom Libraries are committed to accommodating distance students and providing them full use of the library resources and services for their studies and research.

3.2. 5th Year MA Program

Christendom Graduate School’s Master of Arts in Theological Studies may also be awarded one year after earning a Bachelor’s degree from any accredited institution. This can be done by taking advantage of the Graduate School’s summer terms as early as the summer following a student’s junior year of undergraduate studies. The Graduate School’s summer term and August commencement date make it possible to complete four academic terms—the standard equivalent of two traditional academic years—by August of the year following the student’s completion of his or her undergraduate degree.
3.3. Summer MA Program

The Graduate School offers a residential Summer Program for those students who wish to pursue graduate theological studies during the summer. It is held at the main campus of Christendom College just outside of Front Royal, Virginia. This program is popular with students who are not able to move to the Northern Virginia area for the regular (fall/spring) graduate program, and with teachers and others who have summers off from work. Many of the fall/spring graduate students also attend the Summer Program, accelerating their studies by going year-round; similarly, many online/distance students attend the Summer Program in order to experience the Christendom academic community.

The Christendom Graduate School Summer Program runs for six weeks, ending around the end of July. A full cycle of courses is offered each summer. Both the Master of Arts in Theological Studies degree and the Apostolic Catechetical Diploma may be earned at the Summer Program, over the course of at least four summers, or students may combine the summer program with courses taken online over the fall and spring semesters to finish their degrees in a shorter time. The beautiful riverside campus with its full range of recreational possibilities provides a perfect milieu for the study, prayer, and fellowship that make up Christian academic community life.
4. Non-degree Programs

4.1. The Apostolic Catechetical Diploma

The Christendom Graduate School is authorized by the Sacred Congregation for the Clergy to award both the Advanced and the Basic Apostolic Catechetical Diplomas. These catechetical diplomas are distinct from the academic Master of Arts degree in Theological Studies, although the two may be earned simultaneously. The diploma is awarded by authorization of the Holy See in recognition of the catechist’s competence in the field of catechesis and his or her personal commitment to teach Catholic doctrine in communion with the Magisterium of the Catholic Church.

To receive the Advanced Apostolic Catechetical Diploma, a student must have a bachelor’s degree and successfully complete forty-two (42) graduate credits of course work, including the core requirements of the MA and the special requirements for the evangelization and catechesis concentration. The Basic Apostolic Catechetical Diploma may be awarded to those students who do not possess a bachelor’s degree but who complete the forty-two credits of required courses. Either Apostolic Diploma maybe earned online. Research papers are not required of students in the basic diploma program, and comprehensive exams are not required for either catechetical diploma. Students must maintain a “B” (3.0) average in order to be eligible to receive these Apostolic Diplomas.

4.2. The Vita Consecrata Institute

The Vita Consecrata Institute (VCI) is a summer program of theological study and spiritual renewal for the ordained and those in consecrated life. It is part of the Graduate School Summer Program and is co-sponsored by the Institute on Religious Life. Professors who themselves exemplify the consecrated life teach courses in spirituality and in the theology of the consecrated life, as reflected in the mission and life of the Church. The program is designed to assist participants to grow in a deeper understanding and appreciation of the consecrated life as “a gift of the Father to His Church through the Holy Spirit,” to grow in their own spiritual lives, and to be able to act as spiritual mentors or guides for others. The program is ideal for religious in formation, those preparing for perpetual vows, consecrated persons looking for a sabbatical or period of renewal, in addition to those who are preparing for formation or leadership roles within their institutes. Although most participants do not take the courses for academic credit, it is possible to earn graduate credit towards the Master of Arts in Theological Studies degree, with a concentration in the theology of the consecrated life or in spirituality, or towards a certificate in theology of the consecrated life or in spirituality. Students may take all of the courses for the MA degree (consecrated life or spirituality concentration) over the course of four consecutive summers, or they may elect to take some of their core requirements either online or on campus during the fall and spring semesters. The spirituality and consecrated life courses are offered only during the summer program in conjunction with the Vita Consecrata Institute. The spirituality courses of the VCI are open to lay persons with approval, but the consecrated life courses are restricted to those living or discerning the consecrated life.

4.3. Certificates

For those students who are not interested in a master’s degree, but who still desire an organized program of studies, the Graduate School offers several certificate programs. Students may earn certificates in dogmatic theology, moral theology, evangelization/catechesis, consecrated life, spirituality, and scripture studies. Certificate students take the same challenging and informative courses as degree-seeking students. Even students without a bachelor’s degree can earn a certificate, although graduate credit for the courses can only be granted to those who have submitted proof of a bachelor’s degree. Usually 12 – 15 credits are required for each certificate, and a GPA of at least 3.0 (B average) must be maintained. All certificates except spirituality and consecrated life may be earned completely online. Please see below for the course requirements for the various certificates.

4.4. Casual & Audit Students

Students may enroll in both on-campus and online courses as casual students without working towards a degree, or they may audit courses, both on campus and online, without earning graduate credit. Credits earned as a casual student automatically apply toward the degree program if a student later decides to earn a degree, certificate or diploma. Christendom courses qualify for catechist certification in many dioceses, and for teaching licensure and re-certification in most states. Many students take them for adult Faith formation or for personal enrichment. Casual students seeking graduate credit for transfer to another graduate school must provide proof of a bachelor’s degree.

4.5. Diaconate Formation

The Christendom Graduate School provides theological formation to the candidates for the permanent diaconate of its home diocese, the Diocese of Arlington. These courses are also available online to other dioceses who may wish to entrust the academic formation of their deacon candidates to Christendom. A program of twelve to sixteen courses is adaptable to the particular needs of each diocese. For more information, please contact the Christendom Graduate School.

4.6. Catechist Formation & Certification

The Christendom Graduate School offers a foundational catechist formation and certification program online to interested individuals who wish to deepen their understanding of the teachings of the Faith, and to parishes and dioceses for formation of catechists. The program is divided into two, semester-long courses, each of which includes thirty hours of online video. The comprehensive courses cover the principles of evangelization and catechesis and guide the student through the Catechism of the Catholic Church, with special emphasis on the Scriptural foundations for Catholic teachings. Reflections from the professor’s personal experiences in catechesis suggest ways to teach doctrinal concepts to various age groups. The student who completes both of the catechist formation courses receives catechist certification from Christendom. Catechist formation courses are not taken for graduate credit, nor do they apply towards the MA degree.

Students looking for further education in evangelization and catechesis beyond the catechist formation program may earn the Christendom Certificate in Evangelization and Catechesis, the MA in Theological Studies degree with the concentration in evangelization and catechesis, or the Apostolic Catechetical Diploma.
5. Curriculum

5.1. Description

The curriculum at Christendom, centered upon Christ as professed in the baptismal faith of the Church, is designed to enable students to penetrate the truths of the Faith, to hand on an authentic understanding of the basics of sacred theology, and to continue their study of theology with competence. In a curriculum that systematically integrates instruction in theology, philosophy, morals, sacred Scripture, catechetics, and spirituality, each course contributes to the formation of the theologian and catechist. Theology courses provide a rigorous, academic study of core areas of the Faith, while those in philosophy establish an understanding of the preambles of the Faith and the nature of the human person. The Word of God gets in-depth penetration in Scripture courses; spirituality and morality courses reflect on the meaning of life in Christ; and evangelization and catechesis courses focus on both the content and methods of the Church’s missionary and catechetical tradition.

Christendom College acknowledges in its curriculum the essential role played by St. Thomas Aquinas in Catholic theology. Courses in philosophy and theology are taught according to the spirit, method, and principles of the Common Doctor. The graduate-level courses at Christendom presuppose a general knowledge of the Catholic Faith as presented in the Catechism of the Catholic Church. The curriculum delves into the mysteries of the Faith using as primary sources Sacred Scripture, the Fathers and Doctors of the Church, and magisterial and conciliar documents, especially those of Vatican II, Pope John Paul II, and Pope Benedict XVI. At Christendom the study of theology proceeds within the Faith, being, as St. Thomas Aquinas says, “the science of those things which can be concluded from the articles of Faith.”

Students matriculating in the Master of Arts in Theological Studies program choose to concentrate their studies in systematic theology, moral theology, sacred Scripture, evangelization and catechesis, the theology of the consecrated life, or spirituality. All students take certain core courses which are foundational to the various concentrations. Three of these are in systematic theology (God the Father, Christology, Holy Spirit & Ecclesiology), one is in moral theology, two are in Scripture (Old Testament and New Testament), and another two are in philosophy (Philosophy of God and Man, and Philosophical Errors).

The purpose of the required philosophy courses is to assist students in a philosophical understanding of God, his creation, the nature of the human person, and certain philosophical errors which influence contemporary thought and scholarship, with the ultimate aims of providing a philosophical foundation for theological studies and of enabling students to present the Faith more reasonably and effectively.

The systematic theology concentration allows a student to study the articles of faith more deeply than in the core requirements, by studying them from the vantage point of the writings of the Fathers of the Church, and also historically, by way of the challenges to the Faith encountered in the Church’s history. The moral theology concentration aims to train theologians who are steeped in an understanding of the Christian moral tradition, especially as it applies to contemporary moral questions, so they can explain and defend the Church’s moral teaching. The sacred Scripture concentration forms students in a deep contemplation of the narrative of salvation history, enabling them to grasp the content and unity of the Old and New Testaments, and the theological significance of the Bible. Following the mandate of Jesus "to teach all nations," the concentration in evangelization and catechesis equips the student with the history and theology of the Church’s evangelization tradition, along with the practical skills needed to direct successfully a parish's efforts to extend the Kingdom of God through various faith formation programs and activities. The theology of the consecrated life concentration focuses on various aspects of the consecrated life as reflected in the missions and life of the Church. It is designed for, and limited to, persons called to the consecrated life who attend the summer Vita Consecrata Institute. The spirituality concentration aids the student in developing his or her own spiritual life and also trains him to act as spiritual guide or mentor to others. Although spirituality courses are only offered in conjunction with the summer Vita Consecrata Institute, they are open to lay persons in addition to consecrated persons and clergy.

The curriculum at the Christendom Graduate School is a flexible one, without any prescribed order in which courses must be taken. Students may begin in any semester, may enroll either full-time or part-time, and may combine on-campus with online courses in any combination they wish. Forty-two credits are required for the master’s degree and for the Apostolic Catechetical Diplomas.

5.2. Program Learning Goals for the MA Degree

1) Scripture and Hermeneutics: Students will be able to explain and apply Catholic principles of biblical interpretation, understand the unity and content of the Old and New Testaments in light of apostolic Tradition and with attention to the analogy of faith, and be able to discern the scriptural foundations of Catholic doctrines.

2) Magisterial Teaching: Students will be able to explain and apply sound interpretive principles to magisterial teaching and will know principal doctrines contained in such major acts of the Magisterium as the first four ecumenical councils, the Council of Trent, the First and Second Vatican Councils, the Catechism of the Catholic Church and papal teachings of the last century.

3) Thomas Aquinas: Students will understand and apply the principles and methods of St. Thomas Aquinas, as well as develop a basic firsthand knowledge of his teaching on such core topics as (but not limited to) the relationship of faith and reason, creation, the human person, the Trinity, the Incarnation and the moral life.

4) Analytics and Dialectics: Students will be able to formulate a sound argument, discern and appropriately employ distinctions, and to pick out, analyze, sympathetically recast, critique and defend arguments.

5) Research: Students will demonstrate the ability to produce a sustained piece of research-based theological writing, drawing upon such resources as periodicals, databases, reference works and other primary and secondary literature relevant to theology.

*Competency in Latin is also required for the moral theology and systematic theology concentrations. Please see §5.3.9 below for details.

‡Competency in Greek (or another biblical language) is also required for the sacred Scripture concentration. Please see §5.3.9 below for details.

5.3.8. Prerequisite Course

Students entering the MA or diploma program without sufficient previous coursework in theology must successfully complete THEO 590: Introduction to Theology, preferably at the beginning of their studies. The credits earned in this course do not count in the required credit total for the Master of Arts degree or the Apostolic Diploma, and a student may request that the Registrar record his or her grade for this course as a “pass/fail” instead of a letter grade, which is included in the student’s GPA. This course is available every semester, but only in online format.

5.3.9. Language Requirements

It is an MA-degree requirement that students concentrating in systematic or moral theology demonstrate an ability to read Latin. It is an MA-degree requirement that students concentrating in sacred Scripture demonstrate an ability to read Greek (or another biblical language, with permission from the Dean). There is no language requirement for the consecrated life, evangelization and catechesis, and spirituality concentrations.

To fulfill the language competency requirement, students may successfully complete LATN 501/Introduction to Ecclesiastical Latin, or GREK 501/Introduction to Biblical Greek. The credits earned in language courses do not count toward the 42 graduate-level theology credits required for the MA degree or Apostolic Diploma, and students may take language courses either for a letter grade or on a pass/fail basis. Language courses may not be audited—they must be taken for credit and active participation is required.

Students with prior experience with Latin or Greek may test out of the respective course by taking a competency exam consisting of a Scriptural or theological passage to be translated into English with the aid of a dictionary.

5.3.10. Online Courses

At the Christendom Graduate School, the MA curriculum is identical for online/distance students and for local/classroom students. Individual online courses are also as identical as possible to the classroom versions, and in most cases include video recordings of onsite classes. Students may take all of their courses online, or they may combine online and on-site courses in any combination. Students may earn the Master of Arts in Theological Studies degree and/or the Apostolic Catechetical Diploma online. Degree requirements are the same for all students, whether local or distance. All courses of the systematic theology, the evangelization and catechesis, and the moral theology concentrations are available online, in addition to some elective courses. While students in the consecrated life and spirituality concentrations may take their core requirements online, the consecrated life and spirituality courses are only offered on campus during the summer as part of the VCI. Online courses at Christendom include both pre-recorded, asynchronous courses which students may access at any time, and live online courses to which students must log on at specified times for an interactive course experience.

5.3.11. Sequence of Courses

In general, there is no strictly required order for taking the courses in the MA program. While students may take courses in any order, here are some recommendations that will facilitate learning and help students get more from the program:

- THEO 590 (Introduction to Theology) is a prerequisite course that provides a foundation for the rest of the program and should be taken as close to the beginning of your studies as possible.
- It is a good idea to fulfill any language requirements early on so that the skills gained may be applied in subsequent coursework.
• Since philosophy is the handmaiden of theology, it is recommended students fulfill their philosophy requirements earlier rather than later – these courses introduce terminology and concepts that are employed in theology courses.
• Because “the study of the sacred page is ... the soul of Theology” (DV 24), students are encouraged to fulfill their core Scripture requirements toward the beginning of their program of studies.
• Students must take OT courses before NT—the New Testament is the fulfillment of the Old.
• It is a good idea to take THEO 601 before THEO 602 or THEO 603.
• Students concentrating in moral theology should take THEO 604 early in the program, as this fundamental moral theology course introduces many teachings that are expanded in the other moral theology courses.
• Electives may be chosen from the requirements of other concentrations, or from other elective courses that are occasionally offered.

5.5. The Cycle of Course Offerings

At the Christendom Graduate School, the required courses (both core requirements and special requirements for the concentrations) are divided into four cycles, each containing approximately one-fourth of the requirements.
Two cycles are offered every semester, one of them on campus and the other in the online format. Every fall semester, either Cycle A or Cycle C is offered on campus (and either Cycle B or D online), and every spring either Cycle B or D is offered on campus and Cycle A or C online. The summer cycle sequence is independent from the fall-spring sequence: either Cycle A or Cycle C is offered at Front Royal (and either Cycle B or D online) in the summers of odd-numbered years, while Cycle B or D is offered on campus (and either Cycle A or C online) in even-numbered years. The schedule of cycles for upcoming years is listed below. Required courses in the core program are offered online more frequently, either every fall or every spring online, not merely in their cycles. Introduction to Ecclesiastical Latin is usually offered on campus in the spring semester and online in the fall, and the prerequisite Introduction to Theology course is offered online every semester. Consecrated life and spirituality courses are offered only in the summer, as part of the Vita Consecrata Institute, at the Front Royal campus.

Full-time students normally attend the Christendom Graduate School for four consecutive semesters in order to take all of the required courses for the master’s degree: either four consecutive summers or two academic (fall & spring) years. It is possible to accelerate the program by combining on-campus and online courses, and also by attending year-round.

The courses offered during each of the cycles are listed below. Courses marked with an asterisk are only offered on campus, during the summer program at the Front Royal Campus.

5.8. Course Catalog

CONL 621/History of the Consecrated Life (2 credits): An overview of the development of the consecrated life over the centuries showing the Apostolic origins and the growth of consecrated life under the guidance of the Holy Spirit working through founders, saints, and the Magisterium; includes examination of extra-biblical sources with special emphasis on early monastic and Patristic sources.

CONL 622/Liturgy and the Consecrated Life (2 credits): The liturgy as the source and summit of the consecrated life, with examination of various liturgical texts and magisterial documents on the liturgy.

CONL 624/The Vows According to St. Thomas Aquinas (2 credits): The rich scholastic tradition on the consecrated life as found in St. Thomas Aquinas, including questions in the Summa Theologiae as well as “On the Perfection of the Spiritual Life” and the Contra Retrahentes.

CONL 625/Consecrated Life and Vatican II (2 credits): The post-conciliar teaching on consecrated life, especially that of Pope John Paul II, including Redemptionis Donum and Vita Consecrata.

CONL 626/Consecrated Life in Canon Law (2 credits): A close examination of the various canons of the Code concerning the consecrated life, intended to give a general juridical understanding of the consecrated life, as a basis for understanding and interpreting the proper laws of various institutes.

EDUC 602/The Catechetical Tradition: the theology and history of evangelization and catechesis; the methods, models and experiences of evangelization and catechesis from Biblical times throughout the history of the Church; the teachings and normative directives of the Church on evangelization and catechesis.

EDUC 604/Methods of Catechesis and Evangelization: This course explores the purpose and foundations of evangelization and catechesis and the practical processes of the presentation and proclamation of the Faith. Included are a study of human development, natural, moral and spiritual; a survey of evangelization and catechetical methods available for various age groups, levels of spiritual development, and situations, including methods and models for parish evangelization programs, RCIA, sacramental preparation, Bible studies, adult education, retreats, etc. Also included are religious education models, effective public speaking, and use of social media in evangelization.

GREK 501/Introduction to Biblical Greek: An introductory course aimed at a reading knowledge of Greek especially as used in classical, biblical, and patristic sources. This course focuses on the vocabulary, forms, and syntax of classical, biblical and patristic Greek. This course may be taken on a pass/fail basis and does not count toward the graduate-level theology credits required for the MA degree. The course may be taken for undergraduate credit.

HIST 501/Early Christianity: An introduction to the history and literature of early Christianity. Topics include the spread and inculturation of Christianity as well as its relationships to first-century Judaism and imperial Rome. This course explores the development of the idea of Christianity through early councils and controversies with attention on the thinkers who shaped the history of this development. Special attention is given to an analysis of primary sources from the period. This 500-level course is suitable for rising juniors and seniors.
HIST 610/Church History, Part I: A survey of the history of the Church from its Apostolic origins through the Middle Ages, with special emphasis on theological issues and the contributions of the Church to culture and civilization. Includes the development of the early Church, major councils of the Church, the Monastic tradition, the Eastern Schism, the rise of Islam, and the Crusades.

HIST 611/Church History, Part II: A survey of the history of the Church from the High Middle Ages to the present time, with special emphasis on theological issues and the contributions of the Church to culture and civilization. Includes the Renaissance, Reformation, the Catholic Counter-reformation, the evangelization of the New World, the scientific revolution and Enlightenment, up to the Second Vatican Council.

HIST 700/The Crusades: This course seeks to impart knowledge of the crusading movement from the 11th – 17th centuries with specific emphasis on exploring the modern myths surrounding the Crusades and providing an authentic response. The Crusades are presented primarily as “armed pilgrimages” driven by a holy zeal to liberate conquered Christian lands, and as an organic and integral movement in the life of the Catholic Church. Finally, the course presents a narrative history of the crusading epoch in Church history by focusing on the persons, places and events that shaped this fascinating period of history.

LATN 501/Introduction to Ecclesiastical Latin: An introduction to the Latin language by which students may begin to develop reading competency in Latin. The course covers resources and techniques for effective learning of Latin, the Latin case system, the five main cases of the first three declensions, all six verb tenses in the active and passive voices of the indicative mood, and complex sentences and subordination, and several Latin prayers. This course may be taken on a pass/fail basis and does not count toward the graduate-level theology credits required for the MA degree. The course may be taken for undergraduate credit.

LATN 502/Intermediate Ecclesiastical Latin: A more advanced course in ecclesiastical Latin, building on the introductory-level course, using the same textbook and approach as LATN 501. This course includes the subjunctive mood, the sequence of tenses, the grammar of conditional clauses, common pronouns, the syntax of indirect statements, some irregular verbs, comparative adjectives, the fourth and fifth declensions, and much more. This course may be taken on a pass/fail basis and does not count toward the graduate-level theology credits required for the MA degree. The course may be taken for undergraduate credit.

PHIL 501/Topics in Medieval Philosophy: Aquinas on God and Creation: An introductory exploration of Aquinas’s philosophical theology, focused on primary texts. Topics include the existence and nature of God, the relationship of faith and reason, divine action, providence and evil, religious language, and the meaning and coherence of core religious claims concerning the Trinity, Incarnation and Atonement. Context is provided by attention to Aquinas’s contemporary interlocutors and to such influential predecessors as Augustine, pseudo-Dionysius, Boethius and Anselm. This 500-level course is suitable for rising juniors and seniors.

PHIL 502/The Responsibilities of Freedom: Issues in Contemporary Ethical Theory: A philosophical investigation of issues in contemporary ethical theory and metaethics. Topics include human freedom, the nature of value, the relationship of goods to persons, practical reason, the origins of moral responsibility, human action, consequentialism and moral absolutes, and the relationship between ethics and religion. This 500-level course is suitable for rising juniors and seniors.

PHIL 602/Philosophy of God and Man: A study of Thomas Aquinas’s metaphysics and anthropology, based on the Summa Theologicae. Includes the proofs of the existence of God; the relations between essence and esse in creatures and in God; the attributes of God; human nature; knowledge, emotions and will; the spirituality, subsistence and immortality of the human soul; the union of soul and body, and the concept of personhood.

PHIL 603/Philosophical Errors: A study of some of the false philosophies of man and God, especially in so far as these form the intellectual basis for the errors and shortcomings in contemporary popular thought and in Biblical exegesis, with a critique of these theories and a comparison of them with the philosophy of St. Thomas Aquinas.

SCRI 501/Old Testament: A survey of Hebrew Bible/Old Testament literature—including the Pentateuch, Prophets, historical writings and Wisdom Literature—with a focus on its historical and social settings, canonical context, literary genre and typology, with exploration of basic hermeneutical issues. This 500-level course is suitable for rising juniors and seniors.

SCRI 502/New Testament: A survey of the books of the New Testament, including the Gospels, Acts of the Apostles, Pauline epistles and Johannine corpus, with a focus on canonical context. Attention is devoted to literary genres and to the historical settings within which the texts emerged and were first interpreted, with some exploration of hermeneutical issues. This 500-level course is suitable for rising juniors and seniors.

SCRI 602/The Pentateuch: This course covers the first five books of the Old Testament. It accentuates God’s revelation both in creation and to the Patriarchs and Moses. It reviews the creation accounts in Genesis in light of God the Creator, man’s creation in the image and likeness of God, and marriage. It examines the Fall and the biblical notion of sin, presenting an introduction to the Pentateuch and its biblical theology.

SCRI 606/Old Testament: A survey of the historical, wisdom, and prophetical books of the Old Testament as a preparation for the New Testament era. Includes the revelatory stages of salvation history, the importance of Biblical typology, and the function of fulfilled prophecy.

SCRI 607/New Testament: A survey of the books of the New Testament as the fulfillment of the old covenant epoch, including the Gospels, the Acts of the Apostles, the Pauline corpus, the Catholic epistles, and the Apocalypse of St. John.

SCRI 610/The Synoptic Gospels: The course reflects on the meaning and content of the gospel genre in the New Testament. It accentuates the relationship between the Synoptic Gospels and the Johannine gospel. It also provides an in-depth study of Ss. Matthew, Mark, and Luke, as well as the Acts of the Apostles. Special emphasis is given to the Infancy Narratives, the Lord’s Supper, and his passion, death and glorious resurrection.

SCRI 701/The Prophets: A study of the history of prophecy in Israel: the prophets, their role in the development of salvation history, and their biblical theology. An emphasis is given to the prophet’s role in calling the Israelites to covenant fidelity, purity of worship of Yahweh, and authentic liturgical celebration.

SCRI 702/The Psalms and Wisdom Literature: An examination of the Psalms and Wisdom literature (Job, Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, Song of Solomon, Wisdom of Solomon, and Sirach) of ancient Israel and the historical period in which they developed. Special attention is given to the liturgical and catechetical uses of the Psalms and Proverbs in the Early Church, the problem of evil in the book of Job, and the historical period as described in the books of Joshua through 1 Kings.

SCRI 710/The Johannine Corpus: A study of John’s gospel and epistles, the Book of Revelation and the Catholic epistles, emphasizing the influence of the Old Testament on this literature as well as the historical setting of composition, especially in regard to the heresies of the Judaizers and gnostics, and the persecutions of Christianity under the Roman empire in the latter half of the first century. This emphasis in study transports the modern reader back into the world of the early Church, making these books, along with the rest of the New Testament, come alive today in the modern world.

SCRI 711/The Pauline Epistles & Acts of the Apostles: A study of the Pauline epistles and Acts of the Apostles. This course focuses on the historical setting of the Pauline epistles in the apostolic period as described in Acts of the Apostles. Viewed through this historical window, the Pauline epistles spring to life, and their unifying themes, unique character and the purposes of their composition become clear.

SCRI 723/The Gospel of St. John: The purpose and beauty of the Johannine text are examined in light of the Catholic Faith; included are the Fourth Gospel’s complementary role to the Synoptic Gospels, its significance for Trinitarian dogma, its contribution to sacramental theology, its value for Christological research, its place in the devotional life, and the unique role of the Blessed Virgin Mary in redemption.

SCRI 724/Gospel of Mark: This exegesis of the action-filled Gospel of St. Mark highlights the doctrinal and spiritual truths within the text and examines themes such as the New Exodus of the New Covenant, the Messiah as “Servant,” the miracles that disclose Christ’s deity, the real humanity of the Son of God, his justice and mercy to sinners, the opposition between Jesus and the devil, the Last Supper within the economy of salvation, and the vivid accounts of the Savior’s Passion, Resurrection and Ascension.

SCRI 801/The Deuterocanonicals: This course explores the deuterocanonical books of the Old Testament (Baruch, Judith, Tobit, Sirach, 1 & 2 Maccabees, Wisdom). This course will especially focus on the Hellenistic age, which entailed the fight of the Jews to preserve their faith in an encroaching and antagonistic Greek culture. By examining the texts written in and around this period, students will gain an understanding of the ideas (such as resurrection, sacrifice, prayers, tribute), institutions (such as the Pharisaical schools, Sadducees), and the political situation current in the world of Jesus Christ in the Gospels.

SPIR 630/The Spiritual Life (2 credits): This course covers general themes concerning the spiritual life such as the universal call to holiness, the stages of the spiritual life, the role of Christ and the Church in the spiritual life, the supernatural organism and the indwelling of the Holy Spirit, personal vocation, and the four essential means to perfection, namely, the sacraments, the life of prayer, self-denial and asceticism, and charity working through the virtues. It also treats the secondary means to Christian perfection.

SPIR 631/The Sacraments in the Spiritual Life (2 credits): This course examines the sacraments as essential means to Christian perfection, looking at each of the sacraments of Christian initiation and how they insert one into the paschal mystery of the Lord: baptism as the sacrament of rebirth into Christ, confirmation as the sacrament of Christian maturity and spiritual militancy, and the Eucharist as the sacrament of perfection. Also treated are the sacrament of penance as a means of overcoming sin and attachments and growing in virtue, and the various Christian states of life - marriage, consecrated life and priesthood - as concrete ways of living the universal call to holiness. (Students may take THEO 605, Liturgy and Sacraments, in place of this course.)

SPIR 632/Christian Prayer and Contemplation (2 credits): This course first looks at Christian prayer as it is treated in the Catechism of the Catholic Church, and at the stages of growth in prayer as presented in the Interior Castles of St. Teresa of Avila. In light of these primary sources, it treats the foundational role of vocal prayer, in particular liturgical prayer, in the spiritual life; but the greater part of the course’s focus is on mental prayer, beginning with meditation and culminating in infused contemplation. Prayer is presented as an essential means to Christian perfection and illustrates how growth in the spiritual life is effected and manifested by growth in prayer.
SPIR 633/Christian Asceticism (2 credits): This course studies the ascetical life of penance and self-denial and the necessary role it plays in the Christian life of virtue and prayer. It takes as its primary framework the teaching of St. John of the Cross on the purifications the soul must experience to reach Christian perfection. Within that context the ascetical practices of fasting and vigils, custody of the senses and the disciplining of the passions, and the mortification of the intellect, memory, and will are explained. Lastly, the course looks at the passive dark nights the soul must endure to reach union with God, and the power of redemptive suffering.

SPIR 634/Virtues and the Spiritual Life (2 credits): This course provides an overview of the theological and moral virtues, their role in living out the Christian life, the necessity of growth in virtue to reach Christian perfection, charity as the essence of Christian perfection, and the role of the gifts of the Holy Spirit. The primary focus is on the cardinal or moral virtues which the spiritual director assists the directed person to develop. (Students may take THEO 721, The Virtues, in place of this course.)

SPIR 635/Spiritual Direction (2 credits): This course examines the place and importance of spiritual direction in the Christian spiritual life. It covers the role and limits of psychology and psychological counseling in spiritual development; the qualities that should be found in spiritual directors and those directed; the role of retreats and other religious experiences in spiritual direction; the difference between spiritual formation, spiritual counseling and spiritual direction; the discernment of spirits and vocational discernment; and the various schools of spirituality. It also provides practical advice for the ministry of spiritual direction.

THEO 501/Principles of Theology: An introduction to the principles and aims, nature and methods of theology. Focus is on the content of Christian theology with a special focus on the creational catholic tradition, its methodological presuppositions and principles of development, and comparative approaches within the Christian tradition. This 500-level course is suitable for rising juniors and seniors.

THEO 590/Introduction to Theology: This introduction to the graduate-level study of theology treats comprehensively the meaning of theology, its various disciplines, major methods and basic terminology. Areas of focus are Divine Revelation and the characteristics of the human response, relationships between faith and reason, Scripture and Tradition, doctrine and its development, and the roles of the Magisterium and the theologian in the Church. Special attention is also given to the history of theology, with particular emphasis on the patristic, medieval, and post-Vatican II periods. Prerequisite for all M.A. and Diploma students unless exempt because of prior theological study. The credits for this 500-level course do not count toward the graduate-level theology credits required for the MA degree.

THEO 601/God the Father: An introduction to the doctrine of God, the Triune Creator, especially from the theological perspective of St. Thomas Aquinas. The course includes the existence of God and the divine attributes; our ability to know and speak about God; God’s knowledge, will, creative action and providence; the patristic development of Trinitarian dogma; the processions and personal relations within the Godhead; the divine persons considered with respect to the one divine essence and to each other; and the external divine missions. This course combines historical and systematic methods in a sustained engagement with primary sources, especially Aquinas’ Summa Theologiae I.

THEO 602/Christology: An introduction to the mystery of the Incarnation, from the perspectives of Scripture, patristic theology and St. Thomas Aquinas. Course includes the nature and method of Christology, the ‘quests’ for the historical Jesus, foreshadowings of the Incarnation and Jesus in the Old Testament, the patristic development of Christology, the motive for the Incarnation, the personal union of Christ’s divine and human natures, the human nature assumed by the Word, the theological implications of the union of natures, the Paschal Mystery and our redemption. This course combines historical and systematic methods in an engagement with Aquinas’ Summa Theologiae III.

THEO 603/Holy Spirit and Ecclesiology: A study of the Person of the Holy Spirit, both within the Trinity and within the mystery of the Church, as expressed in Scripture and Tradition. Magisterial documents such as Mystici Corporis Christi, Suprema haec sacra, and Lumen Gentium receive particular attention. Also studied in detail are the properties and marks of the Church, the privileged role of the Mother of God in the Church, and the universal call to holiness.

THEO 604/Moral Theology: A study of the fundamental principles of moral theology in light of the revelation of God’s law and the grace of Christ, including the nature and end of morality, the vocation to beatitude, freedom and the morality of human acts, moral conscience, infused habits, the nature of sin, the commandments and the natural law, the question of moral absolutes, and an examination of some contemporary trends in moral theology.

THEO 605/Liturgy and Sacraments: This course is devoted to a study of the liturgical and sacramental life of the Church encompassing the historical, theological and canonical developments of the sacraments, and situating them in their relation to the entirety of the liturgy as a celebration of Christ and his Church.

THEO 606/Apologetics: The reasonable explanation and defense of the Catholic Faith utilizing Scripture, theology, Church history, and philosophy to explain Catholic beliefs and practices, such as Tradition, the Papacy, justification, the divinity of Christ, miracles, the problem of evil, the Real Presence, the Blessed Virgin Mary, and Catholic moral teachings. The course especially focuses on controversial points of Catholic doctrine and their rationale, those teachings which are most often misunderstood by Catholics and non-Catholics alike.

THEO 701/Grace: This course explores the Catholic doctrine of grace through Scripture, the Fathers of the Church and St Thomas Aquinas. Topics include the relation of law and grace, justification, divine/human cooperation, human participation in divine life, the relationship between nature and grace, sanctification, merit, and the divisions of grace.

THEO 712/Patristics: A study of the Eastern and Western Fathers of the Church, with emphasis on their contributions to Church doctrine, morals and the spiritual life, including their historical context and the significance of their lives and writings for the contemporary Church.

THEO 720/Theological Anthropology: This course examines the biblical roots and theological tradition of the study of the human person, the origins of mankind and the nature of the human person as a free and acting subject, Jesus Christ as the archetype and perfection of humanity, the concept of man and woman as image of God, the unity in sexual difference, and the nuptial meaning of the body. The course will also examine briefly the question of the end of man and the relationship between nature and grace.

THEO 721/The Virtues: A study of the nature of virtue and the types of virtue continuing with a focus on the particular virtues, specifically, the four cardinal virtues with their related virtues, and the three theological virtues. The course is based on the Summa Theologiae II of St. Thomas Aquinas and involves close examination and discussion of the texts. The aim of the course is to revive an authentically Thomistic ethics based on the human person.

THEO 724/Sexual and Biomedical Ethics: Moral and canonical issues related to procreation and the care of human life, including fornication, homosexual acts, contraception, sterilization, natural family planning, the

THEO 802/Catholic Social Teachings: This course examines the role of the Church in society and focuses on the major papal and conciliar documents since Pope Leo XIII. Special attention is given to teachings about the family, the political and economic spheres of society, the international community, and the Holy See’s unique contributions on the world stage. The sacredness of life, the dignity of man, his creation in the image of God, and his personhood are emphasized as foundational to social morality.
6. Academic Policies

Christendom College is committed to promoting academic freedom. It recognizes the right of students to the Truth, and to receive instruction in accordance with the teaching of the Catholic Church. The Graduate School recognizes and defends each faculty member’s freedom and right to teach the Catholic Faith without fear of reprisal. Professors and students enjoy the freedom to explore and research and thereby develop their own insights into Catholic doctrine in accord with the Magisterium of the Catholic Church. Legitimate pluralism, consistent with fidelity to both the ordinary and extraordinary Magisterium, strengthens the bonds of unity, and honest dialogue is most welcome at the Graduate School.

Students are bound by the academic policies and degree requirements of the Graduate School Bulletin in effect at the time of their first registering as a matriculating student fully admitted to the program. A student who returns to the Graduate School after an absence of more than one semester will be bound by the requirements in force when he or she returns. Academic policies apply equally to classroom and online students, except where noted.

6.1. Admissions

Admission to the Christendom Graduate School is open to all properly qualified persons who desire to develop their knowledge of authentic Catholic teaching in explicit communion with the Holy See and with the principles of renewal in ecclesiastical studies given to the Church by the Second Vatican Council. A prior education in theology is not required, although students are expected to know the teachings of the Catholic Faith as presented in the Catechism of the Catholic Church. Students without prior formal theological education are required to complete the prerequisite course (THEO 590, Introduction to Theology) at the beginning of their studies. The application process is the same for on-campus and distance students. Christendom College does not discriminate on the basis of age, sex, race, handicap, color, national and ethnic origin in administration of its educational policies, admission policies, and other school-administered programs.

6.1.1. Application requirements

Applicants for admission to the Christendom Graduate School must present evidence of ability to do graduate work in theology. A baccalaureate degree (B.A. or B.S) or equivalent in any field is required for the Master of Arts Program and the Advanced Apostolic Catechetical Program, but not for the Basic Apostolic Catechetical Diploma or the certificate program. As the Graduate School has rolling admissions, there is no application deadline. Applicants to the Master of Arts and/or Apostolic Catechetical Diploma programs should send the following materials to the Admissions Office, Christendom Graduate School, 4407 Sano Street, Alexandria, Virginia 22312:

- Completed application form (obtainable online at https://graduate.christendom.edu/admissions/).
- A statement of purpose (approx. 150 words) explaining the reasons for enrolling in the program.
- At least two (2) letters of recommendation, preferably one from a pastor or priest who knows the applicant, and another from a former professor or from a supervisor with whom the applicant has worked.
- Official transcripts of all post-secondary academic work.
- $100.00 application fee (made payable to Christendom College).

6.1.2. Casual Students

Casual (non-degree-seeking) and certificate students have a simplified admission process consisting of an information form only. They must fill out and submit the application form but do not need to submit letters of recommendation nor the application fee. However, they must submit evidence of a bachelor’s degree (in the form of an official transcript) if they wish to receive graduate credit for their courses for transfer to another institution. A student may register for courses as a casual student while completing the application for admission to the MA program, and all credits earned as a casual student can apply towards the degree, upon admission. A student may be admitted on probation if the Admissions Committee is not satisfied of his or her ability to do graduate work in theology. The probationary period is two semesters, and the student must earn a GPA of 3.0 to be fully admitted to the MA or Diploma Program. Audit students are welcome at Christendom on a space-available basis; they need not apply for admission, but may simply register for courses.

6.1.3. Transfer Credits

Students who wish to have their previous graduate work in theology or philosophy considered for transfer to Christendom must make this request of the Dean of the Graduate School and provide official transcripts of such graduate work. They may also be required to supply course syllabi or catalog course descriptions establishing that the courses correspond to Christendom courses and are of an academic quality sufficient for graduate work. No more than twenty graduate credits may be transferred. Credits earned more than ten years before matriculation at NDGS may not be accepted. Academic credit is not granted for life experience, for course work done on a non-credit basis, nor for independent study outside of a university or seminary.

6.2. Taking Courses

6.2.1. Add/Drop/Change of Courses, Cancellations

During the first two weeks of the fall and spring semesters and the first week of the summer semester, students may register for, or add, a course for credit by completing the Add/Drop/Change Form and submitting it to the registrar. No for-credit student will be admitted to a classroom course after this period, although students may register for online courses within the first half of the semester. If a student wishes to change his or her status from audit to credit after this period, he or she must obtain permission from the professor before submitting the form. If a student withdraws from a course within this period, no record of the course will appear on the transcript. If a student withdraws from a course after this period, a grade of “W” will be given for the course. A student who wishes to withdraw from a course (or to change to “audit” status) must notify the registrar in writing, either by submitting the Add/Drop/Change Form or by emailing the registrar. Failure to notify the registrar in writing of one’s intention to withdraw may result in a recorded grade of F. When applicable, the appropriate refund will be issued (or credited to the student’s outstanding balance) according to the schedule indicated below under “financial policies.”

The Graduate School reserves the right to cancel a course at any time due to insufficient enrollment, as determined by the Dean of the Graduate School. If inclement weather necessitates the canceling of classes, the announcement is made on the Graduate School home page https://graduate.christendom.edu by 2 PM the day of class.

6.2.2. Class Attendance

Students are expected to attend all lectures for each course in which they are enrolled. For online students, this means attentively watching all course lecture videos in their entirety and participating in any other mandatory online sessions the professor may require (including, but not limited to live video conferencing, discussion threads, and online journal entries or essay posts). Penalties for absences or tardiness (including online non-participation) are assigned by the professor. Unauthorized absences in excess of 9 contact hours may result in the grade of F. Students are expected to be prompt and to dress and conduct themselves in a manner appropriate for pursuing higher studies in theology.

Students may use voice recorders or laptop computers in class only for the purpose of note-taking and study by students; publication beyond the class is forbidden.

Full-time students are those who are enrolled in at least three courses (nine credits) in a fall or spring semester and two courses (six credits) in a summer term.

6.2.3. Research and Writing

Research is a necessary and essential part of the learning process at the Christendom Graduate School. A research paper is normally required in every course, although professors may adapt this requirement to the particular needs of the course. The approximate length for a research paper is not more than twenty, nor less than twelve pages in length (typed with double spacing). Basic Diploma students are not required to write papers in any course, and they should notify the professor of their Basic Diploma status at the beginning of the semester. Normally papers follow the Turabian format outlined in Kate L. Turabian, A Manual for Writers of Term Papers, Theses, and Dissertations, latest edition (University of Chicago Press), although professors may allow other formats. Students are expected to complete and submit all required research papers prior to the end of the semester unless they have been granted an extension.

6.2.4. Directed Studies Courses

Directed studies courses may be permitted by the Dean of the Graduate School for special research of interest to a student, provided the student has demonstrated his or her ability to do independent graduate-level research. A directed studies course is not permitted merely for the convenience of the student or because the student has failed to register for the course when it was available. A student who wishes to apply for a directed studies course must first seek permission from the Dean, and subsequently may ask an individual professor to direct him in such a course. Students must also submit a Directed Studies Application Form to the Dean. This form is available in the Student Resources section of the Graduate School website. Students must pay an additional fee for an independent study course, and are advised that such a course normally requires at least 90 hours of work.

6.2.5. Course Extension

If for a grave reason a student is unable to complete the requirements for a course by the end of the semester, he or she may apply in writing to the professor for an extension, either by filling out the Course Extension Request form or by emailing the professor. If the professor approves the request, he or she will submit a temporary grade of “incomplete” and the student will have an extended period in which to submit the remaining work, as determined by the professor; however, the deadline may not extend beyond July 31 for the spring term, October 31 for the summer term, or March 31 for the fall term. Extensions/incompletes are granted at the discretion of the professor, and only for grave reasons such as illness, unexpected job-related or family obligations or other serious incapacity. However, because of the intensity of the Christendom Summer Program, full-time summer students (registered for at least 6 hours) may automatically have the extension without having to establish a grave reason: they may have until October 31 to submit any research paper, project, or written assignment other than an exam.
For online courses, the extension permission is intended for research papers and essay final exams, not for regular weekly course work such as viewing videos, taking quizzes and submitting weekly assignments. Professors cannot be expected to continue monitoring the online classroom or to grade weekly assignments after the regular course period is over, and we cannot guarantee access to the online classroom after the end of the academic term.

6.2.6. Course Reactivation

If a student (after having been granted an extension) fails to submit the required work by the extension deadline, the only way he or she may complete the course (to avoid having to re-register for and re-take the course) is to fill out the Course Reactivation Request form and submit it to the Registrar along with the $300 course reactivation fee. If the Dean of the Graduate School approves the request, the Registrar will then reactivate the course and notify the professor that he or she may accept the remaining required course work. A student may reactivate each incomplete course only once, and only within a year of the original due date (the end of the academic term in which the course was taken) by which time all course requirements must be submitted; otherwise, the student must re-take the course if he or she wants credit for it.

6.2.7. Grading

The range of grades, with the corresponding explanations and grade points, is as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Grade</th>
<th>Meaning</th>
<th>G.P.A.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>A</td>
<td>Excellent</td>
<td>4.0</td>
</tr>
<tr>

<td>Failing</td>
<td>0</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>W</td>
<td>Withdrew</td>
<td>No credit</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>I</td>
<td>Incomplete</td>
<td>No credit</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

Students are required to maintain a B (3.0) average in the Master of Arts, Apostolic Catechetical Diploma, and certificate programs. Students with more than two incomplete courses may be refused permission to register for an upcoming academic term.
Grade appeals. Academic grade appeals are not handled under the formal complaint and grievance policy detailed in §7.3 below. A student who wishes to appeal a grade should first appeal directly to his or her professor. If the matter is not resolved by direct appeal to the professor, the student may have recourse to the Dean of the Graduate School. Appeals to the Dean of the Graduate School should be made in writing.

6.2.8. Academic Counseling and Academic Probation

The Dean of the Graduate School normally interviews each student upon matriculation to discuss his or her program of study, although this “interview” is often conducted via telephone or email with distance students. Each student is assigned an academic advisor from among the faculty, depending on his or her concentration. Students may seek academic advice or counseling at any time from the Dean, the student’s advisor, or any available faculty member. Online students have the same easy access to academic advisement, to the Graduate School administrative staff, and to their professors as on-campus students have: they may call or email the Graduate School faculty and staff at any time and expect a prompt response.

Any student whose GPA falls below 3.0 must seek academic counseling from the Dean. A student who receives a grade of F on any exam or in course is strongly encouraged to seek academic counseling from the professor, and perhaps also from his or her academic advisor and/or the Dean.

A student is on probation if his or her Grade Point Average (GPA) falls below 3.0. He or she is permitted to register for one more academic term in order to raise his or her GPA to or above 3.0. Failure to do so may result in the necessity of withdrawing completely from Christendom. Students are permitted to retake courses in order to improve their grades, and the second grade received will replace the previous grade. A student who is admitted to the Graduate School on probation has two probationary academic terms in which to maintain a GPA of 3.0 in order to be fully admitted to the MA or Diploma program.

6.2.9. Student Records

Student records are private and are available only to authorized members of the faculty or administration who need to see them. Christendom College’s policy complies with the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 (Buckley Amendment).

Unless a student requests in writing that direct information be held private, the Graduate School may release the following direct information to any authorized person on request: name, address, telephone number, date and place of birth, and dates of attendance. Authorized persons include prospective employers verifying applications, and officials performing security clearance checks. The student who wishes such information to be private must notify the Dean of the Graduate School in writing. Student academic transcripts are released only on the direct request of the student.

The Graduate School publishes a directory of faculty, staff, and students and their contact information, and distributes this directory within the Graduate School. Any student who wishes to have his or her information withheld may notify the Dean within the first week of the academic term.
6.3. Completing your MA, Diploma or Certificate

6.3.1. Degree Requirements for the MA

The total number of graduate credits required for the Master of Arts in Theological Studies degree is 42, not counting any prerequisite or language courses. This includes 24 credits of core requirements (eight, 3-credit courses), 12 credits of concentration requirements, and either 6 credits of electives or a 6-credit MA thesis (see 6.3.2. below). Students may take courses online or on campus in any combination. The degree requirements are identical for on-campus and distance students. No more than 20 credits earned elsewhere are accepted in transfer. Candidates for the MA degree must maintain a “B” (3.0) average, and must pass the comprehensive examination. The requirements for the Advanced Apostolic Catechetical Diploma are identical to those for the MA (evangelization and catechesis concentration) except that the comprehensive exam is not required for the diploma.

At the Christendom Graduate School, course credit is normally assigned based on classroom lecture hours. Standard three-credit courses meet for a total of 30 lecture hours, not including exams, reading and writing assignments, and student research (estimated at 8 hours per week for a 15-week term, or 20 hours per week for a 6-week summer term). Accordingly, two-credit courses meet for a total of 20 hours of lecture (with approximately five hours of independent work per week for a 15-week term or approximately 18 hours per week for a 4-week summer VCI term). Since courses delivered in online format utilize video recordings of the same lectures as our on-campus courses, the number of lecture hours required of the student are the same in both formats. Therefore, online courses are assigned the same number of credits as their on-campus counterparts.

6.3.2. The MA Thesis

Students may write a master’s thesis, worth six graduate credits, in lieu of two elective courses. The thesis option is recommended for those students who are planning to pursue more advanced graduate work, especially doctoral studies. Only matriculating MA students may write a thesis, and they must apply for the dean’s permission to write a thesis after completing seven courses (21 hours) of their degree program and having demonstrated excellent research and writing abilities. The thesis must be an original piece of research, not shorter than 50 nor longer than 100 pages, typed with double spacing. The required format is Turabian’s A Manual for Writers of Term Papers, Theses, and Dissertations (latest edition). The thesis must be completed and successfully defended within two years of approval for the project.

The student initiates the thesis process by seeking the permission of the dean at least one year before he or she expects to graduate. He or she may then contact a member of the faculty who is able and willing to direct the student’s thesis, and with his or her assistance decides upon a general thesis topic. The student then submits to the Dean an MA Thesis Application Form (available in the Student Resources section of the Graduate School website), together with a formal thesis proposal. The thesis proposal comprises an abstract, outline and bibliography. Students should seek detailed advice on the proposal from their advisors. Upon approval from the Dean, the student pays tuition equivalent to two (2) three-credit courses.

The student must submit the final draft of the thesis to the thesis director at least two months prior to the planned defense of the thesis. At this time, the student notifies the Dean, who arranges for additional readers and for the defense of the thesis at a mutually-convenient time. The student provides final copies of his or her thesis to the Dean and the faculty readers at least two weeks before the scheduled defense.

The thesis defense lasts approximately one hour: the student provides a twenty-minute oral presentation of the thesis, and then responds to questions from the committee members. The grade is determined by the director and readers and is based on the research, the thesis itself, and the defense. The student must provide the library with a bound copy of his or her thesis before graduation.

6.3.3. The Comprehensive Examination

The Comprehensive Exam is required of all students seeking the Master of Arts in Theological Studies degree. The purpose of this exam is to verify a student’s ability to integrate knowledge gained from classes, readings, and research. In the comprehensive exam, the student is expected to demonstrate in-depth theological knowledge commensurate with a Master of Arts degree. The answers should reflect knowledge gained from the core curriculum, the required courses of the student’s concentration, and the Christendom Graduate School Bibliography. The student must demonstrate a solid grasp of the Roman Catholic Tradition and an ability to analyze and synthesize theological knowledge.

The comprehensive exam is normally held three times a year, in October, February, and July. Both written and oral portions of the comprehensive examination must be taken on campus, even by distance students. The written portion is taken first, in two, two-hour periods on the same day, and the student writes a total of seven essays in this time. The oral portion is taken on a later day, usually within a week, and lasts thirty minutes.

For the written portion of the comprehensive exam, each question is graded by at least two professors pass or fail. For the oral portion, the Dean of the Graduate School forms a committee of at least three professors who examine the student particularly in the area of concentration; the committee will grade the oral exam pass or fail. Then the examining panel renders a final grade of pass or fail for the exam as a whole. For an exceptional performance, a grade of “pass with distinction” may be granted. If a student does not pass the comprehensive exam on the first try, he or she may re-take the entire exam at a later session.

A student may take the comprehensive exam when he or she has successfully completed all the required courses for his or her degree program, both core and concentration requirements; he or she need not have completed all electives or his or her master’s thesis. It is the responsibility of the student to notify the registrar that he or she is approaching the completion of his or her coursework; this should be done in writing/email at least six months before the possible date of the comprehensive exam. Failure to do so may result in the student being unable to take the comprehensive exam when planned and in delayed graduation. Students register for the comprehensive examination by filling out the Comprehensive Exam Registration Form (available in the Student Resources section of the Graduate School website) and submitting it, along with the fee, to the registrar at least two months before the scheduled date of the comps exam.

6.3.4. Commencement Exercises

The commencement exercises for the Christendom Graduate School are held on the Saturday ending the Summer Program, in late July or early August. These exercises are held at the Front Royal campus, starting with a Baccalaureate Mass in Christ the King Chapel, followed by the conferral of degrees, and ending with a reception or luncheon for faculty, graduates, and their families and guests. All graduands are expected to attend graduation, but distance students and others for whom this is impossible may be excused by the Dean. Degrees are not conferred at any other time of the year, but students who complete the program earlier may be provided with a transcript and letter showing they have completed the degree. It is the responsibility of the graduand to apply for graduation by April 30. He or she does this by filling out the Graduation Order Form and submitting it with the required fees to the Registrar. The graduand must do this whether or not he or she is attending the commencement exercises; failure to do so may delay his or her graduation until the following year.
7. Student Life

7.1. Social, Religious and Recreational Dimensions

As a Catholic institution, Christendom College seeks to maintain a community life that promotes the academic, spiritual, and social, development of the whole human person. More than just a place to take courses, the Christendom Graduate School is a fellowship of scholars who are also united in liturgy and in leisure. A variety of activities outside the classroom help foster this fellowship and personal growth.

Christendom College does not have residences for graduate students during the fall and spring terms at the Alexandria Campus. However, many residents in the area rent rooms and apartments to Christendom students, and the Graduate School maintains a list of these to aid students in their search for housing. Room and board are available for summer students attending the Christendom Summer Program at the Front Royal (Christendom undergraduate) Campus.

During the fall and spring terms, students may attend daily Mass at Queen of Apostles Parish Church, on whose grounds the Graduate School is located. The Graduate School chapel is available for students whenever the campus is open, and Mass is occasionally offered there according to a schedule that is published each term. During the Summer Program at the Front Royal campus, daily Mass and Confession, and community Morning and Night Prayers at Christ the King Chapel are an essential part of the community life.

Social activities at the Christendom Graduate School vary according to the desires of the current student body, and include receptions at the graduate school, guest speakers, parties at the homes of students or faculty, hikes, field trips, pilgrimages, and informal get-togethers to watch movies, to discuss topics or to go out to eat. During the Summer Program, canoeing, kayaking, hiking, tennis, basketball and racquetball are additional favored activities.

7.2. Student Conduct

In light of the gospel message, the Graduate School expects all students to conduct themselves in accord with the principles of justice and Christian charity. Christendom will strive to treat students with the same principles, and to provide due process in the investigation of any alleged infraction. The Christendom Graduate School defines academic misconduct to include violations of the academic regulations, cheating, plagiarism, disruption of class activity, falsification of information or documents, and lying. Penalties for any misconduct (academic or otherwise) may include permanent dismissal, temporary suspension, probations, or a formal warning. Students accused of misconduct and facing dismissal have the right to a hearing before a disciplinary committee consisting of the Dean of the Graduate School, two professors, and a graduate student whom both the Dean and the accused student approve. The judgment of this disciplinary committee is final.

7.3. Grievances and complaints

Christendom College seeks to maintain effective and supportive relationships between students and faculty/staff members within the Graduate School. Students are encouraged to make efforts to resolve misunderstandings and conflicts with school staff or faculty members before serious problems develop. Students are encouraged where possible to seek resolution through informal means as a first-approach to resolving the issue at hand.

However, when a student believes he or she has been treated unjustly, in a way that violates his or her personal rights or is in opposition to Graduate School policies, the student may complain to the Graduate School and expect appropriate resolution. There are two avenues for registering a complaint with the Graduate School. These are the Informal Student Complaint and the Official Grievance. If normal channels of communication break down and/or a situation does not permit or lend itself (e.g. sexual harassment) to informal resolution or does not seem to be resolving itself, students are encouraged to seek recourse through the official grievance process.

Issues regarding academic grades are not handled under the grievance policy (for academic grade appeals, please see under “Grading”, §6.2.7, above). A student who wishes to appeal a grade should first appeal directly to his or her professor. If the matter is not resolved by direct appeal to the professor, the student may have recourse to the Dean of the Graduate School. Appeals to the Dean of the Graduate School should be made in writing.

7.3.1. Informal Student Complaints

Informal Student Complaints are complaints or conflicts which do not escalate, either by their nature or by the request of the student, to the level of an Official Grievance, yet are still important in the evaluation process for the Graduate School. Informal complaints should be made to the Dean of the Graduate School.

7.3.2. Official Grievances

Official Grievances are official complaints of a more serious nature permitted to be submitted by faculty, staff or students.

The procedure for an Official Grievance. Students who wish to file a grievance must begin by submitting a Student Grievance Form (available in the Student Resources section of the Graduate School website) with their attached grievance letter. Completed grievances are to be returned to the Dean of the Graduate School.

If a student wishes to file a grievance against the Graduate School Dean, the student submits the grievance to the office of the Vice President of Academic Affairs who will appoint appropriate College officials as a committee to investigate and resolve the grievance.

All grievances must be filed within ninety calendar days after the incident/event/issue causing the grievance occurred. After filing a grievance, the student is contacted within ten business days with an initial response, although, often progress will be made sooner than the ten-day time frame. During the entire grievance process every effort is made to respect confidentiality.

The Graduate School Dean, Vice President of Academic Affairs or their designee investigates the grievance and communicates with the appropriate students, staff, or faculty to address the problem, as is warranted. Resolution of the grievance occurs once the final response or outcome is determined. The student filing the grievance is notified of the action or non-action that will be taken in response to the grievance.

If the determined resolution is not perceived to be sufficient by the student, the student may appeal to the Grievance Appeal Committee, by submitting to the office of the President a letter of appeal addressed to the Grievance Appeal Committee. This committee is made up of members chosen by, but not including, the President of the College. The committee will make a decision to hear or decline the letter of appeal. In the case that the appeal committee declines the letter of appeal, the previous resolution decision remains in effect. If the Appeal Committee accepts the letter of appeal, the student will have his or her case heard and subsequently the committee will determine whether a new resolution will take place or the resolution will remain as decided by the prior College official. The decision of the Grievance Appeal Committee is final.

The above mentioned procedures are for the allowance of student grievances when a student feels he or she is personally afflicted by unjust treatment and seeks fair resolution. Complaints about College policies, simply in their nature, definition, or enforcement, are not to be addressed through this process. Rather, students should initiate contact with the Dean of the Graduate School.

7.4. Intellectual Property

Any intellectual property produced by a student at Christendom College, excluding tests, exams, and quizzes, to fulfill in whole or part the requirements of a course in which the student is registered, will be owned by the student. The College does not claim ownership of such intellectual property.

7.5. Procedures to Protect the Privacy of Online Students

The Graduate School observes the following procedures to protect the privacy of online students:

1. Registration for online courses is securely received at the Graduate School office via our password-protected Populi platform or the USPS.
2. The only staff members who see this registration information are the Administrative Assistant to the Dean and the Registrar/Business Officer.
3. Social Security numbers are not asked for as part of the registration process. Those Social Security numbers received with the application to the MA program are kept in the students' files under lock. Social Security numbers are used only for tax reporting purposes (1098 forms).
4. Students’ access to the online classroom is password protected and integral to the registration process in Populi.
5. Access to the classroom (and thus to the students' work and grades) is provided only to the student, the professor of the course, the Dean of the Graduate School, the Registrar and the Classroom Technician.

7.6. Student Achievement

At the Graduate School, student achievement is evaluated through three primary measures: Success rates on the capstone comprehensive exam, annual number of graduates, and certain metrics of our student satisfaction survey.

The mission of Christendom College is to “form the whole person for a life spent in the pursuit of truth and wisdom” so that students are prepared “for their role as faithful, informed, and articulate members of Christ’s Church and society.” The comprehensive exam and graduation rates, as indicators of intellectual preparedness, reflect the level at which our students succeed in pursuit of truth and wisdom. Additionally, the relevant sections of our student satisfaction survey also reflect the level at which our students think they are equipped for life specifically as faithful, informed and articulate members of Christ’s Church and society.

7.6.1. Comprehensive exams

An indication of success for student achievement in any given year is a pass rate of 95% with at least 10% earning a superior pass (P+) and not more than 10% earning a marginal pass (P). Comprehensive exam scores from the last seven years are reported in the following table and reflect student success.

| Comprehensive exam results from AY’11-12 to AY’ 15-16 |
7.6.2. Graduation rates

We also assess student achievement by monitoring annual graduation rates. This gives us an indication of the consistency with which students complete our program and is one of the more useful metrics for assessing student achievement given that the Graduate School has rolling admissions and a majority of part-time students who complete the degrees while balancing graduate study with full-time employment and other responsibilities. Our benchmark for success is to graduate a class of 15 students. Over the past seven years, the average class size has been 15.28 students.

7.6.3. Student satisfaction

Viewed in concert with the other two measures of student achievement detailed above, three sections of the student exit survey are directly relevant for assessing student achievement. Those are the sections concerning the Catholic identity of the program, the section concerning the academic quality of the program and the section concerning student development and research competency. These three series of questions indicate how well students, when reflecting back on their experience in the program, find themselves to be equipped for life as responsible and intellectually engaged members of the Church and wider world.

The 2017 survey results indicate an overall student satisfaction rate of 9.3/10 across all sections of the survey. The result on the Catholic identity and academic quality sections was 9.8/10 and the result on student development and research competency was 8.4/10.
8. Financial Information & Policies

8.1. Tuition Payment Policy

Tuition is due by the end of the first week of the academic term. If a student is unable to pay the entire tuition and fees at this time, he or she must fill out, sign, and return to the Business Office (by the end of the first week of the term) the Tuition Payment Plan Contract, stipulating the manner in which the debt is to be paid so that the full amount will be paid by the end of the academic term. Online students must either pay their tuition in full, or pay a deposit of at least $500 per course and sign the tuition payment contract, before being granted access to the online classroom. In the event of the student’s withdrawal before paying all installments, it is the student’s responsibility to pay the balance due, minus any applicable refund (see below). No grades or transcripts will be released, nor degrees awarded, until all tuition and fees are paid. Students with outstanding balances are not allowed to register for subsequent terms. Registration fees are due with registration.

8.2. Refund Policy

Christendom Graduate School of Theology strives to provide the best education to our students for the best price. Our tuition and fees go directly toward covering the costs of our Master’s program. We do all we can to keep our costs as low as possible to provide quality education to those who work for the Catholic Church, are active in the apostolate, or who wish simply to learn about the Catholic faith.

8.2.1. Non-refundable Fees

All registration and technology fees are non-refundable. These fees cover services provided prior to the beginning of a term.

8.2.2. Refund Schedule

Students who withdraw from a course (or drop to audit status) and who have not yet paid the tuition are liable for the tuition amount minus any applicable refund amount. Tuition refunds for classes dropped within the Add/Drop period will be processed after the Add/Drop period has ended. The effective date of withdrawal is the date upon which written notice (i.e. the Add/Drop Form) is received by the business officer. Tuition refunds will be prorated for students who find it necessary to withdraw (or to change to audit status) after registration according to the following refund schedule.

8.3. Financial Assistance

The Christendom Graduate School of Theology maintains a reasonable and modest tuition charge to ensure that its programs remain accessible to students who wish to attend. Consequently, Christendom does not presently offer graduate students financial assistance in the form of scholarships, grants, or loans. We also schedule our classes in the evenings to allow students to work full-time or part-time during the day to finance their education. The Graduate School offers students a tuition payment plan whereby students may pay off their tuition by installments throughout the term. Many students find that their parishes or employers are willing to help fund their studies, and students are encouraged to contact their pastors, principals, or employers to see if funding is possible.

8.4. Federal Aid
To preserve its academic freedom, Christendom Graduate School of Theology does not accept federal aid or any government funding; this means we do not participate in the Title IV Federal Student Financial Assistance Programs. From its very beginning, Christendom College made a prudential decision never to accept federal funding. As the only accredited Catholic higher education institution that is not dependent on federal student aid, Christendom is uniquely free to teach the Catholic Faith without interference. The prudence of this decision has been demonstrated by the federal government’s expanding use of funding conditions to promote policy preferences.

8.5. Veterans Administration (VA) Benefits
Christendom graduate students are eligible to receive Veterans Administration benefits such as Post-9/11 GI Bill benefits. Veterans qualifying for these benefits should contact the Business Officer of the Graduate School for information and for the necessary enrollment-verification forms.

8.6. Private Student Loans
Christendom graduate students may apply to private sources (such as banks) for student loans. These applications are handled directly by the student and are not processed by Christendom, although we are happy to provide documentation or information needed to verify enrollment. Two private lenders who often provide Christendom students with student loans are listed below:

- Sallie Mae – Smart Option Student Loan: www.salliemae.com (887-279-7172)
- PNC Bank – PNC Solution Loan: www.pnconcampus.com (800-762-1001)

8.7. International Students
International students seeking information on foreign bank payment options should contact the Graduate School Business Officer at 703-658-4304.
9. Library & Learning Resources

9.1. The collection

The principal learning resource center for the Christendom Graduate School is the St. John the Evangelist Library located on the Christendom College campus in Front Royal, Virginia. The St. John the Evangelist Library has a collection in excess of 100,000 volumes, 10,000 of which are in the fields of religion and theology, and over 4,000 in the field of philosophy. The Christendom Graduate School’s Alexandria campus includes the St. Paul Library, which contains more than 19,000 volumes, periodicals, and a variety of electronic resources suitable for research in theology and philosophy.

9.2. Borrowing privileges

Graduate students have ready access to the whole Christendom collection: the same library card may be used at either campus, the catalog of the Christendom Libraries is available online, and students may request that materials from either library be delivered to them at the other library within a few days. Distance students may also request that library materials be sent to them; they will be required to pay return shipping only, and some requests may be refused if the material is rare or easily available elsewhere. Students also have access to thousands of libraries around the country via the Interlibrary Loan service. This service is accessible during St. Paul Library office hours and through the library web page <http://libguides.christendom.edu/home>.

9.3. Partner libraries

Christendom graduate students and faculty have library privileges at the Woodstock Theological Library and the Lauinger Library of Georgetown University, and at the Dominican College Library of the Pontifical Faculty of the Immaculate Conception, Dominican House of Studies (Washington, DC). In addition, currently-enrolled students can access the collections of more than thirty academic institutions in the Commonwealth of Virginia through the Virtual Library of Virginia (VIVA) and its Universal Borrowing Pilot Program. The Christendom library card may be used by current matriculating students to check out materials from all of these libraries. Distance learning students may also be able to gain guest access to local university libraries with their Christendom library card. Students should contact the St. Paul Library or their academic advisor if a letter is required by the host library in order to grant access privileges.

9.4. Online resources

The Christendom Libraries subscribe to several online databases, which are available to students and faculty not only on-campus, but also off-site. These resources are available through the Libraries’ catalog at <https://christendom.worldcat.org/>. These resources include current and past scholarly periodicals, reference works, bibliographies, and more. These resources, along with tutorial videos showing to use them, are available on the library web page at <http://libguides.christendom.edu/home>.

9.5. Research Assistance

The Christendom Libraries provide training to students and faculty in research techniques and the use of learning resources. A research proseminar video is available in the online classroom and live research proseminars are periodically conducted on campus. The Graduate School Library Assistant and the Reference Librarian at the St. John Library are available for assistance with research, whether in structured sessions for groups, or as informal, private sessions for individual help on specific projects.
9.6. Writing Center

Editorial assistance for writing assignments is available through the St. Paul Writing Center. Assistance is provided at every level of the writing process from initial research to final revisions. Students can sign up for consultation at the Library Assistant’s office, or contact Olivia Colville at olivia.colville@christendom.edu.
10. Core Faculty

Graduate School courses are mainly taught by core faculty members. The core faculty of the Graduate School comprises full-time and part-time members. The Graduate School’s curriculum is also supported by occasional faculty who are not members of the core faculty. Core faculty are defined in Faculty Handbook §1.7 as “full-time Christendom faculty members whose primary teaching duties are at the Graduate School and part-time faculty members who regularly teach at the Graduate School: They normally teach at the Graduate School every academic term or summer, or they regularly teach a certain course whenever it is offered, and have done so for at least two years.”

13. Traveling to Campus

13.1. Directions to the Alexandria Campus

Address: 4407 Sano Street
Alexandria, VA 22312

From I-495:
Take the exit for Braddock Road East. At the fifth traffic light turn right onto Lincolnia Rd.; at the third street on the left, turn left onto Sano St. The Graduate School is on the right after a few blocks, on the Queen of Apostles Parish grounds, at the rear of the parking lot, near the Christendom College sign.

From I-395:

13.2. Directions to the Front Royal Campus

Address: 134 Christendom Drive
Front Royal, VA 22630

From I-66:

13.3. Airports

Ronald Reagan National Airport (DCA) is the closest airport to the Alexandria campus, where the Graduate School is based. DCA is served by a range of ground transportation services, including the Metro rail system. Dulles International Airport (IAD) serves both the Alexandria Graduate School campus and the main College campus in Front Royal, where the Graduate School hosts its summer program.

13.4. Rail Transport

The nearest train station is the King Street Station in Alexandria, served by Amtrak and by Virginia Railway Express (which also stops in Springfield, VA). Those travelling by rail from out of state may find it more affordable and convenient to arrive at Union Station, Washington DC, which is easily accessible by car, bus and Metro (the light rail service of the Washington, DC metroplex). The nearest Metro station to the Graduate School is Van Dorn Street. Ground transportation is necessary between the Van Dorn Street station and the Graduate School.

13.5. Busses

Several bus lines have stops within a 15-minute walk or less from the Graduate school. The Graduate School’s neighborhood is served by WMATA’s Metro bus system, the Fairfax Connector and Alexandria DASH. More information, including city bus schedules, can be found online.
14. Disclaimer

The Bulletin of the Notre Dame Graduate School of Christendom College is published to furnish prospective students and other interested persons with information about required courses, admission policies and procedures, academic policies, and other such information required to communicate a basic understanding of its programs. Readers should be aware that courses listed in this bulletin are subject to change without notice and may not be regarded as a binding obligation of the Christendom Graduate School. Changes in policy or financial conditions may make some alterations in school procedures, curriculum, tuition or fees necessary.

Christendom College does not discriminate against any applicant or student on the basis of race, sex, color, or national origin.
